MESSAGE

Everyone loves to live a happy and peaceful life. We spend our wealth, health and time to see our children smile. But there are those hapless, miserable children in our society who are denied the moments of happiness, and all chances to beam. Their parents always live in the throes of a painful day-to-day existence. It is time we spent a few moments thinking of those parents who can't happily take part in weddings and funerals, who always seek an alchemy which would turn their children into normal kids. They are the parents who pray for their miserable children to die, before they draw their last breath. It is the responsibility of each one of us to bring these children to the mainstream of society thereby filling their parents' lives with hope. And I request generous help of you all-physical, mental and financial for the Oppam Project, undertaken by Shihab Thangal Charitable Trust, with the sole aim of lending a hand to these children.

Faithfully,

The trust, based at Kallampara near Feroke, is chaired by Sayyid Munavar Ali Shihab Thangal, son of former Indian Union Muslim League leader Panakkad Sayyid Muhammadali Shihab Thangal. It has 20 members, though there are no office-bearers.

The trust has been actively helping bright students from financially poor families to pursue higher studies. Moreover, it has been supplying drinking water at places hit by water scarcity. The trust has also been helping the elderly obtain their pensions without hassles.

Oppam was launched by Minister for Local Self Government K.T. Jaleel on Monday. As a first project under 'Oppam', the trust brought 1,000 special children in the district under the Swavalamban Yojana of the Union government.

Insurance coverage

The trust paid a premium of ₹357 for each child that ensures them an insurance coverage of ₹2 lakh.

As many as 10 children each were selected from 70 grama panchayats in the district, 20 each from municipalities and 160 each from the corporation.

Oppam aims at bringing children with special needs to the forefront of society. "We plan to ensure social support to children with disabilities like autism and cerebral palsy. We will ensure that they receive all due benefits from the government," Abdul Wahid, a member of the trust said. The trust coordinates with special schools and day care centres to achieve the goal.

There are also plans to ensure expert medical treatment for these children and to train their parents in taking care of them, he said.
